

The Career Development Centre (CDC) is ready to meet the new challenges in Australian migration.

The ever increasing successes of the Career Development Centre (CDC) in the field of overseas migration has been the result of years of dedication to build a name that strikes an image as unmatched in its competence to deliver results to make come true the dreams of those who seek greener pastures. Over the years the numbers who have reaped the benefits of seeking CDC's guidance in migration consultancy have rarely seen a negative result. The constant and conscientious attention to each applicant's case has been and is one of the hallmarks that define CDC and its nature of customer focused service.

Senior Consultant)

With individual attention given to each case every applicant's case is monitored personally by the senior consultant herself the CDC's dynamic enterprising Managing Directress - Samanthika Pathirage. The years of experience in overseas migration consultancy has ensured that an exponent is always providing her expertise to guide each application through the complexities of the multilayered process. Through transparency and keeping the clients constantly updated of the processing the CDC has built up a reputation amongst its clientele for reliability and assurance, which can be hugely comforting to a hopeful migrant who needs to know what his status is and what plans can be drawn up for the big move beyond Sri Lankan shores.

When a migration policy change is introduced there are many changes to the system that happen. At such instances many hopeful migrants may feel they have been made to feel helpless since they had been targeting a particular type of visa and were preparing to meet the criteria set for that. However

CDC can confidently claim that it is ever ready to meet the almost unannounced changes that come up.

Knowing beforehand what to expect and preparing well ahead to brave the rising tides can help better navigate through waters that may turn story to those who set a sail unprepared. CDC always sets its targets for completion of application processing well ahead of deadlines which helps avoid last minute mess-ups and chaos that can very well ruin the whole efforts of the client and sadly leave a hopeful migrant in the lurch. This may happen to many who get caught in substandard services from agents who are only interested in a client up to the moment the advance of the payment is made.

By focusing on the major to the minor details of an application and its processing CDC expertise provides the guidance that makes client feel comfortable and confident with in terms of where his money is going and what to expect. Sometimes it is minor details that can create the adverse result in an application process which cannot have shortcomings if it is to become a success story.

Many applicants who had sought the services of CDC and reaped the benefits of their high caliber professionalism had remarked how they were not given due attention and received little up to date informing and cooperation on the part of the migration consultants they had approached earlier. One of the crucial factors that has marked success for CDC is how they emphasize on the importance of good communication between the company and the client since it becomes a vital factor in the cooperative sense needed to ensure a successful application processing. CDC has many such success stories where hopeful migrant who were let down by other consultants were helped to realize their dreams of going overseas because of their working strategy which focuses on good customer rapport.

The best possible services are guaranteed by CDC to anyone who seeks their guidance on how to realize their dreams of a better life by migrating to Australia.
