Career Development Centre

Continuous success story in Australian migration consultancy services

The leading name in the domain of Australian migration consultancy – the Career Development Centre (CDC) is prepared to meet the upcoming applications in view of the next regional demand list to Australia and thereby continue its success story that will testify its claim as being the premier services centre for Australian migration consultancy that provides unmatched service and unfailing results.

The preceding period of April to May saw a considerable stress on the list of applications due to the visa ceiling. However by the 1st of July the backlog was cleared with every single applicant of CDC being granted their visas to fly to greener pastures to realise their dreams of a better future. A good performance year was thus concluded to the credit of CDC and to the immense satisfaction of its clientele. The year 2013-2014 had its scales set as –zero rejections and one hundred percent satisfied customers.

One of the keys to the success CDC holds is the dedicated service provided to ensure an application once undertaken is committed to and turned into a success story. With friendly and diligently attentive staff the CDC's Senior Consultant and Managing Directress Unee Samantha Pathirage strictly adheres to the core principles that the company stands for, which have proven to be the foundation of its successful strides. Every applicant is thoroughly assessed to be categorised for the most suitable avenue that will pave the way for a successful application to be lodged and processed without a midway 'fall through' that will leave the client in a dilemma and destroyed of all hopes of migrating to Australia.

Most aspiring migrants unfortunately get caught in schemes that are designed to only take the client half way through without a thorough guidance path in consultancy. CDC however believes that once a client is undertaken it is the binding duty of the company to ensure that the correct guidance is given to enable the applicant to reach his goal and get his money's worth. Enhancement of its systems and improvements in client service are also tipped to be implemented in the days ahead with more focus on developing a customer oriented service routine.

Applications once accepted are treated as a personal duty of the staff to be treated with the required diligence that ensures it moves on the path to success through the different stages involved in the process. One of the core principles on which CDC guides its business outlook is that 'no one gets left behind'. Neglect is not in the vocabulary of the CDC, which guards against any possible omissions through a thorough crosschecking system regardless of how much the load may be. No matter how busy the company's work routine gets every application is treated with equal care and attention since every single applicant who has placed his faith in the CDC is respected and seen as a testimony to the confidence reposed in the company.

Confidence building measures through step by step consistent consultancy to clarify any areas in the process can be expected when a person becomes a client of the CDC. Backlogs that are caused by delayed application submission are never dismissed simply because they couldn't overcome the hurdle. CDC believes in motivating every applicant to keep his options open and be prepared to be sped into the next available opportunity as soon as it becomes available due to a subsequent demand list being issued. Negativity and inclination to accept failure are not the attributes that CDC builds in its valued customers. The 'will to succeed is the way to your goal' is the manner in which the company guides its clients whose hopes are never dashed by aiming at making a fast buck off a customer.

The upcoming regional demand list for skilled migration is set to have several changes which the CDC is well prepared to meet. The changes will also include a host of new opportunities and avenues that will open pathways to many professionals from different fields for whom job prospects and career opportunities in Australia will abound. Pathways will open for professionals in fields of pharmaceuticals and pharmacology as well as the medical field and medical services administration. IT professionals and IT educators, medical laboratory technicians, clinic managers, aircraft technicians are also among the list of occupations on the demand list.

The present regional demand list also beckons to meteorologists and therapists of all categories. Various grades of officers from the health sector, agricultural sector as well as the education sector are encouraged to apply as there is plentiful scope to find high remuneration jobs in Australia under the present regional demand list.

The qualified professionals in the sector of education offers manifold opportunities awaiting and therefore the best way to know what exactly is the level of opportunities waiting for you, is by paying a visit to the CDC and sitting down for a consultation which assures confidentiality and confidence building with the client by providing upfront straightforward dealing which speaks of transparency as not merely a label but a practiced policy of the CDC.

One of the focus areas that the CDC will be stressing on in the coming migration year of 2014-2015 is how to develop the client's potential to work or a fast tracked process to meet the deadlines that are set for applications.

Between six to seven months is the timeframe that the CDC hopes to work through, with the client's dedication being paramount in this regard if deadlines are to be successfully met and dreams of migration to be realised.

The fast tracking process is intended to be one that will run with an uninterrupted schedule to equip the applicant ready to face the necessary hurdles such as obtaining the required IELTS marks.

CDC has observed that the factor of IELTS instructors is vital for an applicant to successfully meet his goals. Qualified instructors to cater to different levels of IELTS students are required to meet the demand. Therefore the CDC wishes to announce that positions for IELTS instructors are now open and qualified persons are welcome to apply for the vacancies.

Every hopeful migrant who enters through the doors of the CDC step in with many dreams growing in them to succeed in finding a prosperous life on greener pastures. The management of the CDC respects and treasures that desire in each applicant and believes in offering untiring support to each client to reach that dream. Every applicant's case must be carefully studied in depth in order to assess where the applicant's chances of success stand in the face of migration policy changes that happen from time to time.

With a promise of integrity and unmatched service that honours your decision to trust the CDC with your plans for a better future, the CDC prepares to meet another stage of its successful stride. And upholds the belief that the greatest accolades that are won are the success stories of clients who have found their path to realise their dreams, on greener pastures.
